Planting the Seeds for Savings

Fall in Hawai i may not mean cool weather and falling leaves, but we still get to enjoy fun traditions like pumpkin patches, local harvest festivals, and Halloween!

When you plant a tiny pumpkin seed in soil, it doesn't grow overnight. You have to water it, give it sunshine, and care for it. Over time, that little seed grows into a big, bright pumpkin—sometimes perfect for carving into a jack-o'-lantern or making an ono pie.

Saving money works the same way. Every time you set aside a little of your allowance, birthday gift money, or spare change, it's like planting another seed. At first, it may not look like much, but the more you add and the longer you let it grow, the bigger your "patch" of savings will become.

The best part? Just like you can choose what to do with your pumpkins—decorate them, cook them, or share them—you can decide how to use your savings. Maybe you'll save for something special, share with others, or keep it safe for the future.

So this fall, think of your money like a pumpkin patch. Plant your savings seeds today, and watch them grow into something amazing tomorrow!

Family Savings Corner

Kids Tips for Growing Your Savings

- Plant your seeds: Save a little bit at a time.
- Take care of it: Keep adding to your savings to help it grow.
- Be patient: Just like pumpkins, savings need time.
- Enjoy the harvest: Use your savings for something special, share, or keep it safe for the future.

Parents Tips for Helping Kids Save

- Make it fun: Relate saving to real-life activities.
- Start small: Encourage kids to save part of their allowance or gift money each week.
- Celebrate progress: Show them how their savings are growing.
- Lead by example: Share how you save for family goals, big or small.
